Another week flies by and we are already only a few weeks from half term. The heat wave seems a distant memory, so please can we insure children have waterproof coats with them? We would like to have children enjoying their breaks and lunchtimes outdoors as much as possible.

There's been an exciting addition to our dates for the diary below. I have met with representatives of the PFA and agreed to some wonderful events throughout the year, starting with the return of a disco. Keep an eye out for further information and for communication of the other events.

This week, I wanted to highlight some of the excellent real-world maths that was completed in Apple Class recently. Several of the classes took part in the 'Money Matters' CUSP Festival aimed at improving financial literacy. In a world where our money becomes more and more contactless, it was a fantastic way of exploring the real value of coins.

This week, our assemblies have mainly focused on our school value of respect. We played particular attention to the similarities and differences in children's lives and routines across the world.
